Now more than ever, the issue of safety on construction sites is a major concern in keeping workers and the public safe in New York City. The fatal injury rate of workers in the construction industry is higher than the national average for all industries. This webinar will explore the latest local laws and regulatory requirements as well as innovations that both government agencies and the construction industry have created to protect the public.

Don't miss this opportunity to learn from the City's top regulatory and enforcement leaders on New York's priorities and the latest regulations that affect construction in the New York metropolitan area.

This interactive live webinar will present practical information examining:

- Challenges facing the construction industry and its regulators in relation to safety
- Policies, regulations and rules affecting construction safety
- Proposed reforms enforcing safety in the construction industry
- The impact of new laws designed to increase safety at construction sites
