In the December 2024 issue of the Long Island Press, our Managing Partner, Howard Fensterman, shares a compelling perspective on the evolving political landscape in his Op-Ed, “We Have to Find a Way to Work Together.”

Mr. Fensterman highlights the significance of Long Island’s unique role as a political swing area, where the latest elections showcased a refreshing balance: re-electing Republican leaders while ushering in Democratic voices like Tom Suozzi and Laura Gillen. This bipartisanship, he argues, is not just an electoral result—it’s an opportunity.

From tackling immigration reform to restoring state and local tax deductibility, the Op-Ed underscores how leaders across party lines can collaborate to address the real issues facing our communities.
