Never Again: In his June 2025 Long Island Press Op-Ed, Abrams Fensterman, LLP Managing Partner Howard Fensterman defends Israel's right to self-defense in the face of growing global criticism, particularly following the October 7, 2023, Hamas attacks that killed over 1,200 people, including Americans.

Mr. Fensterman discusses recent escalations with Iran, underscoring how Iran arms proxy groups like Hamas and the Houthis while pursuing nuclear weapons. Quoting Golda Meir, he ends by reinforcing the existential stakes for the Jewish people and Israel, asserting that their resilience stems from having no other homeland to retreat to.

It was Golda Meir who captured why Israel should not ignore the faux outrage that is aimed at the state when it is defending itself in a region where so many are dedicated to its destruction. “The Arab hates a Jew who hits back,” she said. “The Arab loves us only when we are to be pitied.”

The selective history professed by supporters of Arab countries where tens of thousands of Jews once lived before being forced out, is as dishonest as it is pervasive. That should not be a surprise coming from countries and terrorist groups that are committed to seeing Israel wiped from the face of the earth — from the river to the sea.
