Abrams Fensterman is proud to announce a significant commercial litigation victory in the New York County Commercial Division on behalf of our client, Coney Island Auto Holdings Corp., in a dispute arising from the sale of a business governed by a complex Asset Purchase Agreement.

Led by Brooklyn-based Partners Justin Kelton and Mordecai Geisler, the firm successfully tried the case to verdict, securing a $3 million judgment, along with an award of prejudgment interest and attorney's fees.

The decision affirms our client's interpretation of contractual holdback provisions and reflects Abrams Fensterman's strength in high-stakes commercial litigation matters.

Co-Chair of the Firm's commercial litigation department, Justin Kelton, stated,

"This case was a reminder that even the most complex commercial disputes can be resolved by staying grounded in the language of the contract and the intent behind it. We're pleased to have delivered a strong outcome for our client.”
