New York Prenuptial Agreement Lawyer

At the law firm of Abrams Fensterman, LLP, our attorneys understand the importance of assisting our clients in protecting their assets. One method of doing this through the use of prenuptial and postnuptial agreements.

Of course, prenuptial and postnuptial agreements do much more than protect one party's assets in a subsequent divorce. They can also serve to protect each party from being held responsible for the other's liabilities. This is a critical purpose of these agreements that is often overlooked.

Preparing Prenuptial and Postnuptial Agreements

When preparing prenuptial and postnuptial agreements, our lawyers take the time to work closely with our clients. We account for all relevant assets and potential liabilities. We consider every goal that our client has for the future.

Often times, in second marriages, individuals strive to address the needs of their children from previous relationships, while still providing for their future spouse and family.

Our agreements are not merely "fill in the blank" forms. Each is a customized, one-of-a-kind document that is designed specifically for each client – often as the result of negotiation.

Negotiating Prenuptial and Postnuptial Agreements

In many cases, the two parties do not immediately agree on the content of a prenuptial or postnuptial agreement. In those instances, our attorneys are able to work to carefully negotiate an agreement.

Abrams Fensterman has extensive experience designing these agreements for members of the medical community, legal community and business community. Our documents are designed to hold up in the event that they need to be put into play. Our documents regularly withstand challenge when required.
