OPD Defense Lawyers

Experienced Professional License Defense Lawyers Throughout New York with offices in Long Island, Brooklyn, White Plains, Rochester and Albany

The Office of Professional Discipline investigates allegations of professional misconduct across a wide range of professions in New York State.

We guide licensed professionals through every step of the OPD process. From initial inquiries and investigations to hearings and beyond, we stand by our clients to help eliminate or minimize the risk of severe penalties such as revocation of their professional license.

OPD will investigate any complaint against a licensee, no matter where the complaint originates. When our New York professional license defense attorneys get involved with OPD complaints we thoroughly analyze the case to prepare a defense strategy that best suits each clients unique and individualized concerns.

Sometimes these investigations will go no further than the discovery stage if we can successfully show that the complaint has no merit. However, if it is determined by the OPD investigator that the complaint has merit, a more formal review process will begin. We represent our clients at every stage of the OPD process. Our experience can help close cases or reduce any repercussions to the lowest penalty possible.

One wrong statement at any stage of the OPD process can hinder your chances of a successful outcome. During each stage of the investigation or formal review, our lawyers advise and counsel you on the appropriate actions to take at each step.
