With the addition of Partners, Elliot Steinmetz and Rachelle Rosenberg, along with the entire Rosenberg & Steinmetz team, the firm has expanded its capabilities in bridge and mezzanine financing, preferred equity investments, and other complex capital structures. Clients benefit from seamless coordination across real estate, litigation, and corporate disciplines, allowing financings to proceed efficiently while protecting long-term business objectives.

We represent a broad range of lenders and capital sources, including private lenders, debt funds, investors, and preferred equity providers. Our team focuses on structuring and documenting transactions that protect lender positions, address risk, and facilitate efficient execution, with careful attention to collateral, enforcement rights, and intercreditor considerations.

Borrowers and sponsors rely on Abrams Fensterman to align financing strategy with operational realities and long-term business goals. Our experience spans financings involving a wide range of asset classes, including multifamily, retail, office, industrial and warehouse, mixed-use properties, and ground lease structures. We regularly handle conventional mortgage loans, bridge loans, mezzanine financings, preferred equity investments, and acquisition financings, as well as loan modifications, extensions, workouts, assignments, assumptions, and intercreditor arrangements.

These services are provided as part of Abrams Fensterman's comprehensive Real Estate Law and Litigation practice, representing property owners, developers, investors, and commercial clients throughout New York. Our finance team works closely with attorneys in commercial litigation, corporate and general counsel services, leasing, and other transactional practices, ensuring that financings are coordinated with broader business and legal needs as deals evolve.
